

International Journal of Innovative Research in Education

¹Volume 07, Issue 2, (2020)

Message from the editor in chief

Greetings to our dear readers.

We are elated to share with all our readers, Vol. 7 No. 2 (2020) publication of our highly read International Journal of Innovative Research in Education (IJIRE). As has been our custom, as a highly read journal, we maintain a high standard in our published articles, and we have maintained our standard once again in this current issue. This publication aimed to publish high-standard articles that reflect current issues in education as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.

This issue presents three selected papers from skilled researchers from Argentina, Iran, and Romania. The selected topics include the following: A semester of home-classroom, Online language teacher training – Challenges and new perspectives, The correlation between teacher's personality and level of student's anxiety. These papers reflect current issues as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.

We are once again pleased with the researchers, reviewers, and publishing team that made this publication a success. We would therefore like to commend them for their immense contribution.

Dear reader, enjoy reading!!

Best Regards,

Assoc. Prof. Dr. Zehra Ozcinar Teacher Training Academy,

Editor-in-chief.
